Government Decides To Sell New High Speed Ships.

By The Associated Press

The planes, being manufactured by the Brewster Aeronautical Corp., Long Island City, N. Y., were designed for use both on land or to operate from an aircraft carrier. They were said to be superior in major respects to the bulk of the navy and army planes already in service in this country, and to the fighting craft sold to France.

SPEE TRAP

of two days. These three are the entire normal cruiser strength of the British south Atlantic division, and ordinarily would be scattered. The Achilles, which had been operating in the Pacific, took on supplies and fuel here Dec. 9, only four days before the battle. Sure knowledge that a German merchant ship such as the Tacoma had taken on an oil cargo and was dodging about in these waters would be a good clue for the British hunters. They well might have supplied oil in the same spirit that a housewife uses cheese to bait a mouse trap.
Oil and other inflammables on the Admiral Graf Spee continued to smolder today. Naval men said they probably would burn 48 hours more. Then Uruguayan and Argentine authorities must decide what to do with the hulk, 10,000 tons of wreckage in the navigation channel of the river Plate estuary.

Spee and her subsequent scuttling at Montevideo. He cited the battleship's alternatives of internment, or "going out to fight and going down in battle," which would have been honorable for her.
However, he added:
"She discovered a third alternative. She came out not to fight, but to sink herself in the pathway of a neutral state from which she had received such shelter and succor as international law prescribes."

By The Associated Press

ROOSEVELT AWAITS HULL'S SPEE REPORT

Holds Off Any Action Till Details Are Received.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—President Roosevelt arranged today to receive from Secretary Hull a comprehensive report on the sinking of the Admiral Graf Spee off Montevideo.
Returning to the White House after a quiet week-end at his Hyde Park (N. Y.) home, Mr. Roosevelt awaited full details from Hull before deciding what steps, if any, this government might take.
The running sea battle which brought the Graf Spee into Montevideo harbor, violated the so-called "security zone" which American republics recently designated around the western hemisphere. The President presumably was considering the possibility of a formal protest to Great Britain and Germany.
The Chief Executive kept in close touch with the state department yesterday, and there were indications he might have some comment later on the Graf Spee sinking.
Mr. Roosevelt left his Hyde Park home last night in company with his daughter, Anna, and her husband, John Boettger, Seattle publisher.
The President, reaching Washington at the breakfast hour had a cabinet meeting on his program for the afternoon.

BOXER ARRESTED IN ENGELBERG MURDER

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—John J. Ryan, assistant chief police inspector, announced today that Ernie Haas, 22, a pugilist, had been arrested in Toronto, Canada, for the killing of Dr. Walter Engelberg, secretary of the German consulate here.
Ryan said Haas acknowledged he had shot Engelberg to death in his Brooklyn home on Dec. 5. Haas' statement, Ryan said, was made to Captain Frank Bals, Brooklyn detective.
A woman, Ryan said, unwittingly led to Haas' arrest.
The woman went to a Brooklyn department store to buy an electric train and other toys. While she was being waited on she talked with a sales girl about the Engelberg case and mentioned Haas' name and the fact that she was going to Toronto.
The sales girl secretly notified the store management. Police were called and the woman was trailed.
Dr. Engelberg's body was found, 24 hours after the slaying, by another consulate employee who went to the Brooklyn house to see why Dr. Engelberg had not reported for work on two successive days.

Company involving charges of discriminatory discharges and maintenance of a company union.
Communist Charge
Edmund M. Toland, committee counsel, placed in the record yesterday a copy of a telegram in which Phillips told the labor board that the C.I.O. "claiming obligation to communists," was unwilling to dismiss certain complaints in exchange for a compromise settlement with the milling company.
Phillips testified repeatedly that one of the two men dismissed had close communistic connections. He asserted, too, that Paul Fuller, the C.I.O. leader in Cincinnati, had told him the discharge complaints could not be dropped because the union protected its members without regard to their political or other affiliations.
Phillips sent the telegram to Washington, two years ago, after the company had said it was willing to stop recognizing its union if the board would drop its accusation of unfair dismissals. The message said:
"There is no doubt that discharge was union activities and that company discovered communist angle later. Have interviewed witnesses personally and he admits being active in communist party."
"Company is willing to have consent decree entered with drawing recognition from company union as bargaining agency, etc., but insists we drop discharge cases in exchange."

First Doughboys Get "Luxury" Barracks During Training.

By The Associated Press
SOMEWHERE IN GREAT BRITAIN, Dec. 19.—Canadian doughboys awake in steam-heated "luxury" barracks today wondering whether this is a "lace curtain" war.
The first contingent to arrive in Great Britain for a period of intensive training before leaving for the western front, the astonished troops faced their first workout today.
After debarking Sunday and Monday from liners in which many had private baths in their "staterooms," the troops found their quarters in these sleepy little towns equipped with:
Steam radiators, hot and cold running water, showers and bath tubs, and even receptacles for old razor blades.
They slept on spring beds, instead of the traditional bunks, equipped with pillows, mattresses and three blankets.
"Gee, it's swell," grinned a young private.
They had arrived almost unnoticed. Citizens failed to see identifying shoulder tabs and cap badges, and cast only a casual glance at the troops as they stepped from their train.
Major Gen. Andrew G. L. McNair, World war veteran, was in command of the active service force which landed in secrecy at an undisclosed port.
They were the first combat troops to arrive since the war started.

GUNNING FOR BEAR

ZURICH, Switzerland — Members of the crack Swiss rifle team which won the International Rifle Meet at Helsingfors, Finland, in 1937, were called to the Zurich zoo recently to shoot their own trophy. The prize they brought back in 1937 was a Finnish brown bear cub. They presented it to the zoo where it shared quarters with three Swiss brown bears and a polar bear. Recently the Finn grew combative and mauled his Swiss and Arctic companions so ferociously that zoo officials called in the rifle team to execute it. The culprit has been stuffed and sent to the National Rifle Bureau in Berne to be exhibited with other Swiss shooting trophies.

An electric eye device has been invented to watch batches of steel

Cracking Joints

"Can you tell me what causes cracking joints?" asks a high school superintendent.
With great regularity this department receives inquiries about cracking joints. It is one of the subjects that is very embarrassing to us because there is little that is encouraging or informative that can be said on the subject.

The sound of cracking joints is made by a roughened joint surface on top of the cartilage which covers all bones at the joints. In young life, these little sacs are filled full of lubricating fluid, but as age comes on they dry and, when sudden movements are made, the cracking or snapping sound is heard. There is no danger associated with the symptom and nothing can be done to remedy the condition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W.V.S.: "Could you kindly give me an answer as to what other than a cold would make a person have a running nose and sneeze
very frequently?"

Answer—Chronic sinus disease, hay fever, vasomotor rhinitis due to sensibility to dust.

J.G.: "I would like to know the foods that contain a large amount of iron. I am in my second year at college and have very much physical activity but am inclined toward anemia."

Answer—Green vegetables, spinach, raisins, eggs, meats. Milk and dairy products contain very little.

The motions of fishes' tails are imitated by a California inventor's device for propelling row boats and canoes by persons who move a pair of handles vertically.

BEAR-FACED NEGLIGENCE

By The Associated Press

WINCHESTER, Ky.—The desk sergeant hung up the receiver and sent Patrolmen Robert Baker and Heitman Eaten out on assignment —to drive a bear out of a resident's back yard. Arriving at the scene, they found 300 pounds of black bear surrounding a garbage can. The officers stepped back for a consultation. A neighbor finally suggested the bear might belong to another local man, a medicine salesman. The latter was summoned and he led the bear away.

A Place for Non-Partisanship

PARTY politics aside, President Roosevelt and Sen. Taft have opened discussion of a wholly non-partisan issue by tackling the question of a balanced budget.

It does not matter that they have spoken as partisans, because under the circumstances that can't be helped. Sen. Taft is entirely correct when he insists the budget must be balanced, and the President is speaking from experience when he says he doesn't know where to make reductions.

The President's dilemma was stated clearly by one of the speakers at the annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents last Thursday, M. Albert Linton, President of Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co., said:

"Everyone with a sense of reality knows that the solution of this problem will not be easy. Powerful interests, nourished by the spending of government funds, have been created. Lavish spending is still politically popular, for the masses of the people do not yet appreciate the profound social and economic changes that may follow in its wake. However, there are evidences here and there that the electorate is awakening to the dangers. All too frequently in the past when budget balancing has been proposed, most of the attention has been directed to the income side of the ledger and it has been urged that an increase in tax rates is the only solution. Too little consideration has been given to the outgo side as though no curtailment of unnecessary expenditures were possible. That attitude of mind is dangerous and leads simply to a continuation of the drift toward the shoals."

It has continued to be true year in and year out since deficit operations began late in the Hoover administration that maintaining the credit of the United States government was the most important problem confronting the United States. Everything depended on it. Repetition of the debate now is a reassuring sign that leaders of public opinion have not closed their eyes to it merely because no solution has been forthcoming.

'Twas the Week Before Christmas

SENTIMENTAL and poetic emphasis is placed on the night before Christmas, but it's the week before the night before that gets popular attention. At long last it has arrived again.

When one pauses to think of all the things that must be done in the time that remains before Christmas eve he is staggered by the impact of despair. It can't be done, but somehow it always is.

Somehow all the people who are to be remembered with gifts are kept in mind and somehow all the gifts are brought to their destination almost, if not exactly, on time.

The mail all gets sorted out, the Christmas tree decorations get prepared, the messages all get sent, the special arrangements all get made, and all the thousand and one little extra gestures of thoughtfulness that make Christmas what it is are performed.

Thousands of extra miles are walked in this one gala week. If all the ribbon and tinsel were laid end to end and all the Christmas wrapping paper laid side by side to end the world would be wrapped up like a big Christmas present itself.

Without good nature, without that almost ineffable thing called the Christmas spirit it couldn't be done. The fact it is done is the Christmas spirit, perhaps. It is proof that somewhere within mankind lie tremendous resources of goodwill which, when reached, as they are each year at this time, produce the phenomenon of Christmas.

Mussolini's Still Willing

IT'S a hopeful sign that Mussolini's still willing to have peace, but the sign comes a few years too late to have much effect, something Italy's premier must realize in his role as Europe's smartest statesman.

Under his ministrations Italy was one of the first nations to revive the old fashioned glorification of war. It staged one of the first conquests of the new imperialism when it invaded Ethiopia.

A politician in Germany named Hitler saw how easily dictatorship had brought about discipline in Italy and decided to go and do likewise. The politician became Reichsfuehrer Hitler, semi-god of the Nazi government.

There can be no doubt that Premier Mussolini genuinely admires peace; he would be considerably less than astute if he didn't see that the thing he helped start has grown too big for Italy to control.

Russia's unexpected alliance with Germany has knocked the props from under his own statesmanship, based on alliance with Germany. It's either peace, or collapse of Mussolini's dream of making Italy a major power.

News Behind the News

Believe England Has Made Strategic Retreat from North Sea Bases.

By PAUL MALLON

Paul Mallon

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Britain's North Sea blockade has been driven to cover it no longer stretches along those dotted lines from Scotland to Norway as seen on current war zone maps. A tactical revision of lines you might call it a strategic retreat has been reported in confidential dispatches here and conclusively confirmed by events.

German air raids on Scapa Flow and the Fifth of Forth apparently have induced the British to start withdrawing the full fleet—ship by ship—from North Sea bases. New bases have been established on the west coast of Scotland and along the English coast. That is, the British have been driven over to the United States to be given up permanently—so as to give west coast refueling berths to fighting men of war.

The new dotted blockade line has been changed correspondingly and now stretches north from Scotland to Iceland. This is where most merchant ships have been stopped by the British during the past ten days. It is also along this line that the Italian-panini was sunk.

Not Much at Home

The famed North Sea blockade line has been turned over to submarines and small craft. Occasionally some of the larger ships conduct patrol cruises there, but if you will subtract the recently announced locations of British warships in the South Atlantic and elsewhere from her floating total, you will find she has a surprisingly restricted portion of her fleet in home waters.

Apparently the whole sea route along the Norwegian coast has thus been opened except for submarines. Only a sub sighted the Bremen in her glib cruise from Murmansk to Germany.

Thus the Germans seem to have cleared the North Sea of battleships by their air and mine attacks although it remains to be seen how much good this will do them. Britain is certainly strengthened defensively by moving her fleet out of easy air range. The cost of opening a (except for subs) outlet at the top of the North Sea may not prove heavy.

"Spaghettis" Ciano's soft words were weighed here as spaghetti. Italy is presently a cooking down this week, while arranging to become a roaring lion next.

The son-in-law's speech of friendship to Germany was a move to get Italy in on whatever dealing Von Ribbentrop and Stalin have been up to in the Balkan. It was intended to tell Berlin that Mussolini is not angry and will play ball.

But very good evidence came here that Mussolini, under cover of a defensive pact against Russia, that pact may be announced within a few weeks. It is probably the next step in the scramble for Balkan control.

While not aimed at Germany, it certainly means Italy is preparing to meet expected Russian aggression in Bessarabia.

Hitler Fulfilled

Hitler is getting so hungry for Rumanian oil he may not be able to hold himself much longer. Even the public dispatches from Bucharest are now reporting "the Reich temptation to seize the Rumanian oil wells may become irresistible."—(N. Y. Times, Dec. 17)

The Russians have secretly acquired a "commercial" air base at Burgas in Bulgaria, which will enable her "commercial" planes to fly over Rumania and back. She also has acquired another air base on the southern tip of the island of Crimea, in obvious anticipation of bombing the Dardanelles.

If Russia and Germany more simultaneously to divide Rumania, that nation is lost. In view of Bulgaria's apparent willingness to play with Russia this would force the line of resistance back to Greece, Turkey and Italy—which is just what the Italians seem to be preparing for.

Reds Use Mongols?

Some inside reports suggest the Russians are using Kirghiz troops from central Asia against the Poles. These were partly confirmed by Wayne Taylor's report to the Washington Red Cross advising that the Poles could get all the doctors and nurses they needed from Norway and Sweden, but wanted from the U. S. "qualified surgeons and doctors experienced in the treatment of typhus and oriental diseases." No one here would be surprised if it is true, because the Reds used Mongol troops in Poland.

It may, however, further explain the inefficiency of the fled Army.

Another explanation is the amazing extent of the Russian army purge as now reported on high authority here. Fifty per cent of the officers above the rank of captain have been killed, imprisoned or sent to Siberia in the past four years. This would mean 25,000 have been arrested or shot. The whole U. S. army has only 1,000 officers with the rank of captain or better. (The Russians have about 82,000.)

A recent confidential report to one department here says that of all the old prominent military figures in Russia only two are left—Voroshilov, commissar of war and Buzdenny, his assistant.

On the Record

Writer Warns Democrats Not to Underestimate Dewey; Sees Him as Instinctive Leader.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

THE Democratic party will do well not to underestimate Mr. Dewey. Although as yet he has made only two speeches on national affairs, they are the speeches of a young man who seems to have a considerable insight for the essential and a noticeable inclination to lead his own party instead of following it.

It may be of course that Governor Landon in 1936, he will succumb to the pressure of his party and end by leaving the party line. That remains to be seen. But at this moment he is still free. He has not yet thrown away his special advantage; that he is not personally committed to the defense of the Republican record from 1920 to 1932 and that he does not need to adopt as his own the hodgepodge of confused complaints which have made the Republican opposition to the new deal so disarray and so ineffective.

Combined with his political magnetism and his political availability, this freedom from previous commitments makes Mr. Dewey a formidable candidate. For the country is not likely to develop much enthusiasm for a Republican party which offers no more than a return to the good old days of 1920-29; it will not have much appetite for a Republican party which seems to be unaware of the evils that the New Deal has tried to reform, and which more bent on destroying the reforms than on curing the evils. But it might develop enthusiasm for a candidate who had a coherent and positive philosophy which set him apart from the Republican aberrations of the '20s as well as from the New Deal aberrations of the '30s.

Promising Speeches

In this respect Mr. Dewey's two speeches are promising. He has chosen a ground on which if he has the courage to proceed, he can attack the New Deal and also purge and rejuvenate his own party. A Republican candidate might conceivably be elected on a mere accumulation of discontent. But sniping is not a policy and complaints are not principles and the status quo ante is not a workable objective. The Republican party as it operates in Congress today is confused and contradictory. That it is quite unfit to govern the country, and is probably incapable even of conducting a campaign.

So the appearance of Mr. Dewey, who comes of a new generation of Republicans which includes Governors Stassen, Saltonstall, Vandenberg, and perhaps also Senator Taft, should be welcome to all who feel the need for a healthy two-party system. The thesis of Mr. Dewey's Minneapolis speech, that this is still a growing country which still requires development by private enterprise, was I believe, correctly chosen. For if this thesis is true, then the fundamental premise of the New Deal is wrong. Now it is indisputable, I think, that the New Deal has been more than unfruitful to business enterprise; that it has not been concerned merely with the abuses of private enterprise, and that it has been convinced, as Mr. Dewey pointed out, that the opportunity for private enterprise and the social usefulness of private enterprise are almost gone.

Philosophy

This belief has caused the New Dealers to devise their necessary reforms and to administer them in the spirit of men who do not mind discouraging private initiative; and it has caused them to go in for spending, not merely to relieve distress, but merely to prime the pump, but as a substitute for private investment. That is why their needed reforms have been unnecessarily oppressive in practice and why their spending which was in large part impulsive, has been so dangerously demoralizing. Because they have believed that the developments of this country by private enterprise had reached its limit, they have looked to bureaucracy and have looked to bureaucratically managed collective spending as the hope of the future.

The event will show, I believe, that Mr. Dewey went to the heart of the matter when he challenged this, the major working premise of the New Deal. For we are now having a recovery and we shall soon see, I imagine, that the reason why we cannot have a full recovery in the near future, why we still have five or six million unemployed, is that for ten years the development of industry has been arrested.

Industrial production today is

How Big A Tail --?

By Harley L. Lutz

Professor of Public Finance, Princeton University.

THE question, how much taxation can a nation endure and yet prosper is much like the question, how big a tail can a dog wag? Nature has wisely established a balance between every dog and his tail. The pup's caudal appendage is big enough to serve all useful purposes required of a tail, but not too big to be carried and wagged. If this relationship between the size and strength of a dog and the weight of his tail were not thus regulated, there might be dog tails so big and heavy as to reduce their owners to skin and bones just to drag them around.

Nature is not so kind to her human children. They have no automatic regulator of the size of the tax load which they must carry. In consequence this load may become so large as to be a case of the tail wagging the dog. The nation with too large a tax bill it about in the same fix as a dog would be if his tail were too heavy to lift off the ground.

Some will object to the comparison by asserting that taxation is economically advantageous, that it more than sustains its own weight by enabling government to do some things which increase the ability of the people to produce goods. There are those who go so far as to ascribe to the services and activities of government an importance far greater than the work of the people. In this view, government has become the dog and the private economy is only the tail.

GOVERNMENT and its services are necessary and beneficial. Without them, private economic activities would be much less vigorous and fruitful. But so is a tail both useful and necessary. Without it a dog would be enormously handicapped in conveying his feelings and his intentions. A dog minus a tail is an object lesson in futility. After greater than it was in 1929. But there is still an army of unemployed. And the reason is that while the population has continued to grow during the ten years of depression, the expansion of industrial plants, the construction of machines, the making of tools, and the industrial training of young men, have not kept pace with the growth of population.

Thus we are finding, and shall soon be acutely aware of the fact, that the demand for goods is greater than our capacity to produce them. We shall find that at critical points in the economy, in steel, for example, in transportation, and in many other things, there is insufficient capacity and there are not enough skilled workers.

It will soon be demonstrated that our unemployment, today, unlike that during the years immediately after 1929, is not due to over-expansion. It is due to under-development during the latter years of the depression. And since it takes considerable time to enlarge plants, to construct industrial machines, and to train experienced workers, we must expect for some time to see much unemployment in the midst of booming business.

Easiest Part

But this is the easiest part of Mr. Dewey's task. For the country will remember that the new deal came into power in a landslide of reaction against 12 years of Republican rule. It is whether he sees as clearly what was wrong with the Republicanism of the '20s as he sees what is wrong with the new deal of the '30s.

So what Mr. Dewey has to say about the Republican '20s will be the acid test of how much faith is to be put in what he has said so well about the new deal '30s. For it will show whether he is the leader of a renovated party or merely a plausible and attractive opposition candidate.

Age Limits

Writer Can't Figure Out Why 35 Is Earliest Age a Man Can Become President.

By DAMON RUNYON

WE DO NOT know what prompted the makers of our Constitution to determine that 35 was the earliest age at which a citizen was eligible to the office of President.

We presumed they figured at that age a man had settled down. Perhaps in the days of the Constitution makers, he had. In these times it is problematical. Maybe yes, maybe no. A lot of fellows do not discover their night clubs until they are past 40.

Possibly the Constitution makers took the three-score-and-ten mark as a basis of calculation and split it in half, not being able to forecast that eventually Americans were to live longer and get smart younger. Anyway, they made it 35, and it has stood at that notch for more than 150 years. We presume it is churlish of us to suggest a change.

We think it ought to be re-drawn to 21. We do not believe anyone will be elected to the presidency at 27, of course, but it is our theory that under that eligibility rule more fellows would start running for the office earlier in life and get plumb tuckered out and discouraged much sooner. We would not hear from them again, which would be a good thing all the way around.

It would be very good, indeed, for a lot of fellows who take to running for the office when they are well past 35 and waste plenty of time before they discover they are calling the wrong number. If they got help to their error earlier in life they could devote their time to some useful pursuit.

INCIDENTALLY our plans would prevent the permanent breakage of many hearts. If a presidential aspirant could learn in his twenties that the U. S. A. did not desire him as its chief executive, his heart might be slightly cracked, but it would soon mend. Youth is resilient.

When a man becomes aware of the same thing in middle age, his heart is broken beyond repair. It is sad to see a fellow citizen going around with a broken heart because he could not get to be President. It is almost as sad as seeing one with a broken heart because he did get to be President.

At 21, an American receives the privilege of voting. He assumes most of the other benefits and headaches of citizenship. He can collect his inheritance, if any. He can be sued for breach of promise. He can join the Elks but he cannot become President until he is 35 years older.

As a matter of fact, he cannot become a member of the house of representatives until he is 25 or a member of the United States senate until he is 30, but we will not go into that. Any chap of 21 who would want to be a congressman or senator would seem to be of our school of thought. It makes us shudder to contemplate the fun he would have to miss. We expect seriousness of our members of congress.

WE ARE befuddled at this time by criticism of one presidential candidate on the ground that he is too young and of another that he is too old. Tom Dewey, at 37, is the one who is said by some critics to be too young. John Nance Garner, at 70, is called too old.

One is a Republican and the other a Democrat. It is conceivable they may be opposing candidates in 1940. If we elected a President on an age, it would seem to be a great spot for a fellow who comes somewhere in-between Dewey and Garner, say a bloke about 50. This is considered young enough for a President, though too old for many jobs in numerous mercantile and industrial fields.

But of course you know very well that when the checks are down the customers pay no attention to the age of a presidential candidate. They are concerned only with what he stands for. That was demonstrated back down the years by the popular vote received by William Jennings Bryan when he was only 36, a year over the age limit.

BYRON WAS defeated by William McKinley, but at Dewey's present age, and for 30 years thereafter, Bryan was the leader of the Democratic party in the United States. He was 40 when he ran against McKinley the second time and 48 when he made his last campaign, in 1908. Some of his old-time admirers think he would have made a greater president had he been elected at 36 than had he been elected at 48.

It has been said that a man is as old as he feels but it is equally true that he is as old as he thinks. A man at 35 may think as old as 70 or a man at 70 may think as young as 35. But may even think as young as 21, but that might not be to the best interests of the United States of America. Or would it?

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

Ohio's general assembly listed on its rolls Henry Jolly, representative from Washington county, whose battles ranged from hand-to-hand fighting with the American Revolutionists at Brandywine and Saratoga to debates in the Ohio legislature in the early 1800's.

His Revolutionary experience included service under General Macintosh at Fort Pitt, where Jolly had the assignment of transporting supplies and munitions from Fort Pitt to Fort Mifflin, a perilous task due to the presence of hostile tribesmen.

Jolly assisted in construction of the only fort of the Revolution built within Ohio, Fort Laurens on the Tuscarawas river.

When Fort Laurens was abandoned in August, 1779, because it was thought to be too remote from the scene of fighting to be strategic, Jolly was the last to leave the garrison.

Four-Way Squeeze
Rumania's fear of losing her Bessarabia province to hungry Russia is well known, but just now she has a more immediate worry—a four-way bill from Germany, Russia, Great Britain and France for war goods which Rumania didn't even buy. Fleeing Polish armies brought 48 airplanes and 800 trucks across the Rumanian border after the Nazi-Soviet juggernaut wiped up Poland, and Rumania confiscated them. Berlin promptly demanded pay for the seized equipment, and Moscow followed by claiming one half the amount for her own London and Paris, not to be outdone, then put in their own bills to Bucharest, saying Poland had failed to pay for goods they supplied before the war commenced.

MIDWINTER SERVICE

Intruding for a moment in the Anglo-German argument over who won the air-battle—were the Nazis justified, or were they not, in scuttling their pocket-battleship Graf Spee?

What with all the hullabaloo over the question one might think they were bound by honor to line up and cry "we who are about to die salute you," and then go out to certain death with the Anglo-French fleet.

There really need be no dispute over that, for there is no code of war which calls for needless sacrifice from fighting men.

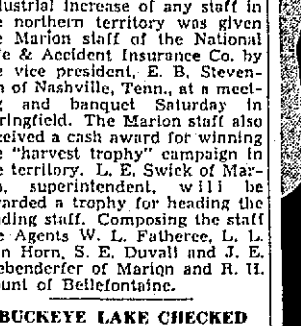

War isn't a tournament in which men joust for the entertainment of spectators, but a bloody business. Soldiers and sailors have to give their lives when necessity calls, but they aren't expected to let any false notions of gallantry lead them into throwing themselves away.

Was Legitimate

I think most naval men will say that the scuttling of the warship was entirely legitimate, though not the best solution. There was the alternative of internment.

German Decision To Scuttle Costly Spee Called Legitimate Solution

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

It might have possibly have slipped through the waiting enemy ships outside Montevideo harbor. But it would have been caught shortly, because other warships were lying in wait for it further afield.

Such a gesture would have cost not only the warship but many or all of its crew of close to a thousand. Probably there wasn't a man aboard who wasn't prepared to make the big sacrifice if the call came.

Still, Herr Hitler, who gave the order for the sinking, could have found no justification for sending these young men to their deaths just for "glory" and propaganda purposes. What think you the German people would have said of such a thing? Certainly it would have taken a lot of explaining.

Having gone through a good part of the World war with the British and French, on both land and sea, I'll lay a tidy bet that there wasn't a sailor on the ship, lying in wait for the Graf Spee who wasn't glad he didn't have to take a hand in sending a thousand German boys to the bottom.

As regards the proposition of allowing the Graf Spee and her crew to be interned at Montevideo for the duration of the war, there is at least one solid argument against it. Supposing Uruguay a little later should be drawn into the conflict on the Anglo-French side, as happened in the World war?

The Graf Spee could then be seized and turned over to the Allies to be used against the Fatherland.

Another Angle

There was another argument for sinking the Graf Spee. The loss of this new pocket-battleship, of which so much was expected, was bound to be grievous for the German public in any event. Many observers believe they will be much better satisfied that the vessel was destroyed by the hands of her own crew.

The loss of this fine, new fighting ship won't do the morale of the German people any good, at best. It is a terrible blow to pride, and to the strength of the navy, for there are only two more of these ships left—the Deutschland and the Scheer, both of which are supposed to be plying in search of merchantmen to sink.

The effect on the morale of Britain, on the other hand, has been electric. It has put England into the seventh heaven at a time when she was suffering from a bad run of losses at sea.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Intuition Justified As Madge Sees Ollie Go to Telephone.

I HAD the same first reaction as Dicky to my father's suggestion that there was no need for either of us to stay and listen to the "tedious details" of the campaign against Jack Leslie, which he had to go over with the Underwoods. It was a dismissal from the conference which he had given us, and for a second I resented our exclusion as much as Dicky evidently did. Then common sense came to my rescue, and I passed on to my husband the enlightenment it brought to me.

"I'm sure Father doesn't mean that we're not capable of sharing in the real work before him," I said. "But you know, he always shirks me as much as he can from anything unpleasant, and I simply haven't the heart to tell him how much I resent the shielding. And you haven't been—"

I hesitated, and Dicky finished the sentence for me. "I haven't been where I could be any use to anybody," he said bitterly. "I've only been a liability, an added worry to all of you, and all on account of my own cursed folly."

It was no time for half-way measures. We had been walking down the hall, and were just outside the door of my room. I caught my husband's hand in one of my own, and with the other turned the knob of my door and opened it. Then I drew him inside, closed the door behind us and immediately threw my arms around his neck and held him tight while I voiced a vehement protest.

"If you dare say anything like that again, I'll go to Reno tomorrow morning," I threatened. "Nothing of all this has been any of your fault—nothing; and Father shares with the rest of us the knowledge that you are simply worn out with the worry and suspense of the past few weeks."

He had put his own arms around me, and when I had finished, he kissed me warmly. "My own loyal girl," he said. "Was there ever a wife like you?"

Original poems on Christmas were given by Mrs. Ullah and Mrs. Cahill, and carols were sung by the group. Contest awards were won by Mrs. Dee Imbody and Mrs. Edith Perelval. A gift exchange was held with Hedgar Halverson as Santa Claus. Refreshments were served.

The Christmas meeting of Le Mercure club was held last evening at Mrs. Little's tea room on East Center street. Hostesses were Mrs. Thomas H. Sutherland, Mrs. Floyd Wideman, Mrs. Frank Wiedemann, Mrs. A. L. Holloway, Misses Marian and Elizabeth Conley, Wanda McMahon and Una Akeley.

Mrs. Wayne Jenkins reviewed Elizabeth Goudge's "The Sister of the Angels" and Harold Bradt, a guest, sang three Christmas songs. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served in a social hour.

William H. Green, a student at Roosevelt aeronautics school, at Minnola, Long Island, N. Y., and Miss Marjorie Green, a student at Wittenberg college, Springfield, have arrived to spend the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Malo of East Center street. Accompanying Mr. Green here was his grandmother, Mrs. Johanna Hurd of Long Island, who also will be a guest at the Malo home.

You take the sting out of everything. And you never think of yourself. You must be terribly fatigued.

"I am," I admitted, "but there is nothing the matter with me that a good night's rest won't cure. But I want to be sure that you're going to get one, also. You are more near exhaustion than I am, though you won't admit it."

"I admit one thing," he said with a grim little smile. "I'm ready for whatever pile of hay is ready for me. I suppose, as per usual when the house is full and the Underwoods are down, old Harry and I are to bunk in my room, while Lili crawls in with you."

"That's what we'll have to do tonight, for the house is certainly full to overflowing. Katharine is rigging up cots for the boys in the nursery sitting room, so that Edith may have their room."

"I'm virtually there now," he said, kissing and releasing me. "But," he shook an admonitory finger at me, "what about you?"

"I also am virtually there," I retorted, smiling, but when he had gone out, closing the door behind him, I did not go to bed, although I changed my street clothing for dressing gown and slippers. I put out my light and lay down on the couch, which commanded a view of the hall when I had set the door ajar, though so slightly that the ordinary passer-by would not notice it, especially as I first had put on the night light in the hall, which made effective shadows around my door.

I tried to tell myself that I was thus fulfilling my little letter of my promise to Dicky, because I wanted to be awake to talk to Lillian when she should come to my room for the night. But I knew that I had another reason, I rather, intuition, which made me give the wakeful and watch the door.

And then it came, the thing for which I had been subconsciously waiting. I heard a faint swish of silk, and then Princess Ollie passed the crack in my door, pausing at the telephone outside it.

Christmas Health Seals on Sale in Post Office Lobby

Patrons being served at the Marion postoffice these days are being provided with an opportunity to contribute to the county campaign against tuberculosis by purchasing the Christmas health seals in the post office lobby.

Under the sponsorship of the Marion County Anti-Tuberculosis League, a "health seal" stand has been set up and patrons may contribute to the campaign by purchasing the seals in any amount desired.

The women workers, assisted by the Girl Reserves from Central, Harding and Thomas A. Edison schools are on duty each day this week. The sales, which started Friday, are meeting with gratifying response. Mrs. W. E. Orcutt, publicity chairman said today.

Shoppers in the uptown district also are made "deal-minded" by the attractive collection of Christmas health seals belonging to Roy Gottschall. The collection, loaned by Mr. Gottschall in the interest of the campaign, includes every issue of the health seal stamps. It is on display in an uptown store window.

Workers at the post office at various hours include the following:

Pre-Christmas Week Packed With Headline Cage Tilts

Galion To Invade Harding Court Thursday; Irish Play Friday; County and Y Games Set.

By CHARLES HOSTETTER
Marion Star Sports Editor

SCHOLASTIC and independent basketball teams face full schedules this week, actively beginning on scattered fronts tonight and continuing through Sunday.

Most important are the pre-Christmas conflicts of Harding and St. Mary teams. The Presidents, facing their last assignment until early next month, meet Galion here Thursday night in a North Central Ohio conference encounter.

Marion St. Mary, still unbeaten after four starts, seeks the fifth scalp when Columbus Holy Rosary is entertained on the home boards, Friday night. Both scholastic programs begin at 7 p. m. with preliminary reserve duels.

Benefit Game Set

Ex-schoolboy athletes will meet in a special benefit game Friday night at the Thomas A. Edison Junior High gymnasium. Harding and Cleveland Shaw grads renew rivalry began last year when the locals pulled a last minute victory from the fire to hand the visitors their first loss. A preliminary matting Edson III-Y and Harding Vocational teams starts at 7.

Proceeds of the game will go to the Edison III-Y organization. Fans will have a chance to see former Harding stars in action, the line-up including Bill Decker, Ray Hudson, Jack Fetter, Roy Everly, Glen Wintermute, Bob Wooley, Johnny Williams and John Rae, of the class of '38, and Elmer Busler, Fred Dunlap and Dana Kirts of the class of '39.

Coach Dewey N. Belyer will groom his former stars for their come-back show, according to plans.

County league games are scattered through the week. Although originally scheduled to be idle it was necessary to move a round of games into the holiday week when changes in the tournament schedule were made by the state athletic association. Waldo visits Agosta and Pleasant treks to Le Rue tomorrow night, while one contest, Kirkpatrick at Morral, is set for Thursday. Caledonia plays at Green Camp Friday and another game, Meeker at Prospect, is carded for the same evening, but may be changed.

NCO Battles

NCO activity books Shelby's Whippets for another searching at Mt. Vernon, while Ashland's Hill-toppers probably will make themselves unwelcome visitors at Bucyrus. Both league duels are Friday night contests and Galion's card calls for a doubleheader, the Orangemen returning home from Marion to meet Cre-tine on tonight's home court.

Two Y. M. C. A. sponsored leagues are opening this week, four games booked for tonight, Sunday school circuit inaugural and three on deck when industrial loop quilters fire the first salvo tomorrow night.

This week's schedule is

TUESDAY
Marion Y. M. C. A. vs. St. Mary's at Marion, 7 p. m.
Marion Y. M. C. A. vs. St. Mary's at Marion, 7 p. m.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Flinchhitting for Eddie Briels)

CHICAGO, Dec. 19 — Investigation of "Lake" fight enigma by Harry Thomas—charges that he agreed to lay down to Max Schmeling and Tony Galento—is getting hotter than a constable's pistol.

A Chicago sportsman, thus far unnamed, may be dragged into the mess provided the case gets into court. He is the unidentified fourth person, in a hotel room at the time Thomas says the alleged deal for his hops were made at a conference between Nate Lewis, his manager, and Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling and Galento.

Humors that Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western Conference since the office was created 17 years ago, would retire because of illness are strictly the hoopla.

Major Griffith is recovering from a heart attack diagnosed as a coronary occlusion. Stricken Oct. 6, Griffith figures he will be back on the job late in February.

L. W. St. John, athletic director of Ohio State university, said that if Griffith only devoted an hour or two each day to athletics the sport would benefit by his administrative value.

Czech Bob Zupke, of the University of Illinois, the No. 1 upsetter of the year in beating Michigan, leaves tomorrow for Arizona for several weeks of relaxation and painless. He also will watch Southern California against Tennessee in the Rose Bowl game. It will be more than a pleasure trip.

The Trojans play at Illinois on Oct. 22 next season.

In case you're interested, that highly touted Tennessee line will be back intact next fall, almost.

The only loss by graduation will be sturdy Jim Rike, center. Knoxville, Tenn., newspapers quote Jack McHugh, Auburn coach, as saying five Southern teams could defeat Southern California.

Tennessee, Georgia Tech, Clemson, Duke and Tulane... Land snakes alive.

See Taylor, capable sports editor of the Des Moines Register, and important Western Conference football official, knows now that he can't match speed with Tommy Harmon, Michigan's All-American back. As an official, Taylor attempted to chase him on one of his long runs and developed hernia, which may qualify him for a surgeon's knife.

FOOTBALL PROFITABLE

Missouri's 1939 football team, led by Paul Christman, enabled the university to retire the bonds on its stadium and also to fill the structure for the first time.

Public Snaps Up Rose Bowl Ducats

By The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif., 19—Fifteen thousand tickets to the Tennessee-Southern California battle in the Rose Bowl were held out to a hungry public today, and promptly snapped up.

The block was offered according to Tournament of Roses-Pacific Coast conference custom as an appointment to Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Pan and the little fans, who can't obtain tickets to this post season grid classic through channels open to alumni and Rose Bowl patron groups.

Hundreds were disappointed at the quick sale.

Director of Athletics Willis O. Hunter of S. C. estimated the big 30,000-capacity bowl could have been sold out "double" for the New Year's day event.

BUCYRUS, Dec. 19.—James Solze, member of the city fire department, completed his fortieth year as a fireman this week.

All of the city's largest fires were fought by Fireman Solze, including the lively stable fire 35 years ago in which more than a score of horses were lost. The entire business district was threatened in this fire.

Among his memories he tells of the fire which gutted the Hub store on Washington square 15 years ago. Rumors and smoke from burning garments made the fire the hardest to fight during his career.
